“Fall and Winter”

Colorado is filled with inspiration from border to border. I live at close to 9,000 feet in the front range foothills and am always in awe of the ever changing seasonal landscape.

My college art training was traditional in discipline and focused on oil painting and sculpture. I spent the bulk of my working career owning/running a small marketing business using my skills in computer graphics, as well as freelancing painting and ink illustrations.

Painting (acrylic and oil), wood carving and sculpture are my current mediums and fulfill my love for two and three dimensional art. Memories are stored in a complicated manner and are closely connected with our emotions at the time of any experience. Light, reflection, shadow, color, movement, texture and shape are all parts of the memory puzzle.

My own “puzzle” is reflected in these paintings which share my experiences living in the Colorado high country.

Thank you for viewing my work.
